

Native Plant Vendors of Virginia and the Mid-Atlantic

List compiled by Scott Knudsen (sknudsen@earthlink.net) and Greg Sykes (greg@grsykes.com)

With mountains, piedmont, seashores, bays, rivers, swamps, and other assorted landscapes, Virginia is one of the most botanically diverse states. This commonwealth is also the northern-most range of southern plants and the southern-most extent of northern species. On top of that, Fairfax County is one of the most botanically rich counties in Virginia, having freshwater tidal zones, dry forests, marshes, and seed deposits from the Appalachian Mountains.

The following table provides a partial list of vendors selling plants native to Virginia/Mid-Atlantic with a Northern Virginia emphasis or has a section dedicated to such species. This list is for information purposes only and does not constitute an endorsement. Depending on the organization, some of the "native" ranges may extend throughout the Mid-Atlantic States whereas others exclusively offer species naturally found in Fairfax County. This table deliberately omits vendors who continue selling bulk quantities of non-native invasive species (e.g., English ivy, Bradford pears, or others on The Invasive Plant Short List). If you know of a good Virginia plant nursery absent from the following table, please contact us with their information.
